Excerpt: . . . founded in 1863; the Literary Institute; the Historical Atheneum; the Philo-Littera; and the society School of Cicero, cultivate belles-lettres. In the programme of the first, natural sciences are included; it publishes a review, which forms more than one volume. The society Literary Essays, inaugurated in 1860 by young men occupied, for the most part, in commercial pursuits, with the view of diffusing a taste for literature, discusses literary subjects in a review commenced in 1862. The Portuguese Literary Lyceum, and the Portuguese Literary Retiro, opened in 1859, have the same object as the preceding, they maintain classes of Portuguese, French, English, history, geography, elementary mathematics and rhetoric. The Institute of Directors and Professors discusses questions relating to tuition. The Institute of Surgeon Dentists studies matters relative to surgery and dental prothesis. The National typographical Literary Association was founded to publish original works of Brazilian authors; it deals at the same time in books. The Portuguese Literary Lyceum was established with the view of encouraging the study of literature, establishing classes for its members, all of them Portuguese, and maintaining the free classes already established. The statutes exact the publication of a review, and the formation of a library. There are other instructive, and, at the same time, recreative societies. As such may be mentioned several dramatic and gymnastic associations, and a great number of musical societies; of these the Philharmonic Fluminense, and the Mozart Club are the more important; several ball societies, of tinguished,...
